

Washingtonians Interested

Fellowship Awards Are Made By AAUW to 22 Scholars

By Gretchen Smith
Women's Club Editor

Four of the woman scholars of the 22 who have been awarded fellowships by the American Association of University Women for the coming year, have special interest for Washingtonians, one being a resident of the city, two being slated to study here, and one a recipient of the Latin American Fellowship raised by the District branch of the AAUW.

Miss Eleanor M. Hadley, resident of Washington, is an economist in the U. S. Department of State and at present is in Japan on an assignment for the State Department.

She is recipient of the Margaret Snell Fellowship and will make a study of the concentration of industry in modern Japan and of the pressures exerted on the state by the economic oligarchy. A graduate of Mills College, Miss Hadley has taught in Japan and studied in Tokyo in the International Studies Institute and the Imperial University. She will gather material while on her present mission for the State Department to use for her AAUW Fellowship project which she will carry out at Radcliffe College.

Will Study Here.
The two scholars, who will carry on studies in Washington, are Miss Josephine Pennell, of Glen Allen, Va. and Miss Juliette Roquet of Paris, France.

Miss Pennell, holder of the Elizabeth Avery Colton Fellowship, will make a study of an early chapter in the relation of America to international power politics—the influence of French propaganda in encouraging American independence. She proposes to show that Frenchmen were planning for American independence before Americans were—that French merchants wished to profit by trade with America; that French were interested in Western lands; and that, smarting from defeat in the Seven Years' War, they sought revenge on England. She will work at the Library of Congress and at the University of Chicago.

Miss Roquet will use the May

Treat Morrison Fellowship for research in terrestrial magnetism and will study at the Carnegie Institution in this city.

The Latin American Fellowship, which has been an annual project of the District branch of the AAUW, has been awarded to a young Brazilian woman, Mrs. Maria Alice Pessoa of Rio de Janeiro, who is now studying anthropology at the University of Pennsylvania. She will use the stipend for a further study of physical anthropology in preparation for research among the Brazilian Indians on her return.

Other Awards.
Other awards of interest, announced today, include the Rose Sedgwick Memorial Fellowship of $2,000, which went to Mrs. Barbara Wharton Rogers-Low of England, a graduate student at Oxford University, who will conduct research on the structure of penicillin; the Aurelia Henry Reinhardt International Fellowship, awarded to Dr. Herdis Rye von Magnus of Copenhagen, Denmark, who will come to this country to continue research on the poliomyelitis virus, and the Southwest Central International Fellowship, which was presented to Dr. Renee Poff of Brussels, Belgium, who will come to the United States for special training in children's neurology and pathology.

Also the Virginia C. Gildersleeve International Fellowship, awarded Dr. V. M. Conway of England, who will continue a study on peat formation and the types of vegetation growing on peat at the University of Minnesota; the Ohio State International Fellowship to Miss Eli Fischer-Jorgensen of Copenhagen, the Helen Marr Kirby Fellowship to Miss Joy Mills of Melbourne, Australia, who will study at Oxford; and the Marion Reilly Award to Dr. Maclachlan Mellink of Amsterdam, Holland, who will study Near Eastern archeology in the United States.

At least 20 young women are expected to come to the United States from the liberated countries as recipients of AAUW international study grants.
